THE NEW WEB

People were right about it. My life is much easier now. If I am in the mood of going to the movies and have dinner, I just have to type a complex sentence in my 3.0 browser such as "I want to see a romantic comedy and eat Chinese food". My browser will analyse my sentence, search the Internet for possible ideas and organise the results for me. It's amazing! I don't have to open dozens of websites – cinemas, reviews, restaurants, recommendations – anymore. With just one click, my computer shows a wide range of options according to my tastes and preferences because my computer is now like my personal assistant. It also knows about the clothes and accessories that I like. Whenever I type "shopping" my computer suggests a list of shops to go in order to find the perfect outfit for the perfect moment. It also recommends trendy clothes for each season. Isn't that unbelievable? I couldn't do that myself. It does the same with books, films, music, magazines, destinations and anything I am interested in. Moreover, as if this wasn't enough, my web 3.0 has also become my school. I'm in third year of college and I cannot attend classes. However, this is not a problem nowadays. The web 3.0 offers online study groups, online classes with my teachers, feedback on assignments and access to materials and resources. One could argue that this already existed with online courses but this is not an online course. This is college. And college is providing the people who cannot afford to move out the opportunity of studying at home without spending so much money. This artificially intelligent web is present in our daily lives and it symbolises future and progress.
